UM HOSTS MAUI CONFERENCE FOR CPAS, INDUSTRY ACCOUNTANTS

MISSOULA —

The University of Montana—Missoula will host the Western Continuing Professional Education Conference Monday through Saturday, Nov. 4-9, at the Aston Wailea Resort on the Hawaiian Island of Maui.

Designed for certified public accountants, industry accountants and executives, the six-day conference will offer six continuing professional education courses on management, accounting, tax and finance. Participants can earn up to 40 CPE credits.

Presenters include Marshall Romney, professor of accounting and information systems at Brigham Young University; and Ken Thuerbach, founder and chief executive officer of Alpine Log Homes, the largest producer of handcrafted log structures in the world. Romney is the past president of the American Accounting Association and has written eight books and more than 70 articles, many relating to fraud. Thuerbach was recently featured on the cover of Success magazine.

Courses to be offered at the conference are Federal Tax Update for '96-'97; Business and Individual Tax Update; Forensic Accounting: How To Deduct and Prevent Fraud; Cutting-Edge Computer Applications for Accountants; and Turning Competitive Strategy Outside In.

The full conference costs $649, but single-day registration is offered. To register or get more information, call Western CPE at UM's Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs, (800) 243-7395.
